CONCURRENT SESSIONS

Disaster Preparation and Recovery: Are You and Your City Prepared for a Major Hurricane?

It takes only one storm to change your community. In this session, hear about the challenges and solutions presented during the most recent Atlantic hurricane seasons. This session will also cover insurance coverage provisions that affect disaster recovery and recovery services that may be available to you after an event. Led by Synergy personnel who actively manage municipal recovery efforts, this session will inform you how disaster preparedness and recovery programs can benefit you and how to integrate them into your emergency response and recovery procedures. The information in this session could be critical to you in future catastrophic events and potentially save countless hours and millions of dollars of exposure.

Municipal Insurance Basics

Municipal staff often wear many hats and are expected to be experts in several areas. If you’re new to insurance responsibilities or if insurance and risk management is just one of your many roles, this session is for you. Learn the basics of insurance, from insurance terms and concepts to what’s included in a policy and which types are available. This session will review how insurance is an integral part of a municipality’s risk management program. The session will also outline municipalities’ different exposures, including those covered by common property and casualty insurance policies.

11:30 a.m. - 12:20 p.m.

CONCURRENT SESSIONS

Legislative Update

As legislation changes, municipalities must adapt to comply with new laws and regulations. This session will review insurance-related legislative changes from recent years, including the 2023 Legislative Session. You will gain an understanding of legislation that passed, legislation that failed and their implications for your municipality and Florida’s insurance market.

Understanding Your Insurance Policy

Each insurance policy is unique and addresses coverages, limits and sublimits, exclusions and more. This informative workshop will help you understand what’s generally included and excluded in a municipal property and casualty insurance policy. Familiarity with the policy will help you locate and understand relevant sections when you have a claim. This session serves as a helpful “part two” of the Municipal Insurance Basics session.

Keynote Presentation – Powerful Leadership without Organizational Power

Managing risk inevitably involves leading people, not just managing processes and facilities. Good design can help reduce risk, but without the buy-in of those who do or manage the work, some of the most important sources of risk will continue to put us at risk.

Securing that buy-in often is less about exercising organizational power than it is about being a person whose approach to leadership is powerful. How might we enhance the power of our leadership? Come discover some answers in this keynote presentation by Scott Paine, Ph.D., Professor Emeritus, FLC University.

3:00 p.m. - 3:50 p.m.

CONCURRENT SESSIONS

Lessons from the Field: Powerful Leadership

Building on the keynote presentation, practitioners will share their experiences, their triumphs and their challenges as they have sought to exercise powerful risk management leadership within their organizations.

FEMA Public Assistance: Navigating the Public Assistance Process to Mitigate FEMA Funding De-obligations

Dealing with the aftermath of a major disaster can be taxing on a municipality and its human and financial resources. FEMA Public Assistance is often there to help cities in their time of need after a catastrophic event. However, the process and timelines can be overwhelming if you learn as you go. Proactively gaining knowledge of the FEMA process will better prepare you and your municipality. This session will give you an understanding of the FEMA Public Assistance process and the do's and don'ts of navigating through the process to avoid claw back of FEMA funding through de-obligations.

4:00 p.m. - 4:50 p.m.

CONCURRENT SESSIONS

Recruiting and Retention: Hire to Retire!

Are you looking for strategies to recruit and retain human resource talent? How does one navigate remote work in this new telecommuting era? What benefits are important to each generation, and how do you effectively market these benefits? This session will discuss effective recruiting and hiring practices, retention trends and tips, benefits, telecommuting (remote work) and more. A municipality's most precious resources are its human resources. Come learn how to protect them effectively.

Employee Wellness: Is It Worth It?

How does a local government operate an effective and engaging wellness program? The core of every good wellness program is behavioral change. People change behaviors with the right education, skills, motivation and social support. But how does a local government do this with limited staff and employees who may be skeptical? And how do you keep the motivation alive? Wellness is more than just a program; it is a community that needs to be intertwined throughout the whole organization in all aspects of employees' lives. When you emphasize the importance of mental well-being in all that employees do, the entire culture starts to shift, and wellness becomes routine, not just a "program" that is encouraged by human resources. In addition to hearing from one of the industry's best and most well-known wellness experts, WebMD, you will also hear from local government peers who have successful wellness programs and learn how they have maintained strong engagement with their employees.

Workers' Compensation and Return-to-Work Programs: How Effective Programs Can Decrease Your Premiums

There are many benefits of return-to-work (RTW) programs, including helping employees recover faster and having employees stay in a routine of working and feeling productive. Another significant financial benefit of an RTW program is controlling claims costs and decreasing workers' compensation premiums. This session will teach you about effective RTW programs and their corresponding financial and nonfinancial advantages.

Managing and Transferring Risk through Effective Contracting

Many municipalities frequently use vendors and contractors for operational services and capital projects. Managing and transferring risk starts at procurement. What contractual and insurance requirements are "must haves," and which are

"nice to have"? Then there is the selection and contracting phase, often where vendors and contractors use their boilerplate contracts. Which contractual provisions may be acceptable, and which should be avoided? This session will help you better understand how to manage or, better yet, transfer risk throughout the procurement and contracting life cycle.

10:00 a.m. - 10:50 a.m.

CONCURRENT SESSIONS

Navigating the New Liability Landscape: Current Trends and Potential Change

The liability landscape, especially in the municipal arena, has recently changed. Scrutiny over municipal operations (such as policing) and social inflation have changed public opinion. Settlements and jury verdicts are rising, and the media has become an effective tool for claimants. Couple these elements with potential changes in sovereign immunity tort caps, and the future of liability claims is not rosy – unless managed properly. Learn about these trends and potential changes, their potential impacts to your municipality and how municipalities and municipal insurers must work together to mitigate liability claim exposure.

Become a Master Facilitator of Employment Practices

Earning the title of Master Facilitator doesn't happen overnight. Nevertheless, after attending this session, you will be up to date on the latest hot employment law topics and be confident in knowing where to turn for competent counsel and resources. Clarity is key, along with the effective implementation of policies that protect the municipality and the employee. This session will cover hiring, discipline, promotions and demotions, transfers and reassignments, layoffs and terminations, discrimination, harassment, unfair treatment and retaliation.

11:00 a.m. - 11:50 a.m.

CONCURRENT SESSIONS

Continuity of Operations: What's Your Plan?

Disasters and unexpected events can significantly impact available resources, personnel and facilities for municipalities. Continuity of operations plans (COOPs) are often necessary to allow critical services to continue to be provided in the face of a disaster. This workshop will provide key mitigation and planning strategies for developing or refreshing your municipality's COOP. Learn from disaster planning and recovery experts how to effectively build, communicate and implement your plan.

Florida Municipal Insurance Trust Services: Are You Maximizing Your Insurance Services?

Do you ever say, "I don't recall all the services and products available to me through my insurance partner?" It can be overwhelming and hard to remember when facing a claim or potential claim. In this session, we will offer a streamlined discussion of the Florida Municipal Insurance Trust (FMIT) suite of products and services available to FMIT Members. This session will also discuss FMIT's unique property coverages and services, our free Employment Law Advisor hotline, complimentary risk and safety training, matching safety grants, wellness programs and more.

12:00 p.m. - 1:30 p.m.
